The report is Forrester's evaluation of the emerging market for Workday implementation partners. The report looked at criteria including business results, HR transformation services, finance transformation services, business planning services, workday analytics services, artificial intelligence and automation approach, workday technology platform, vision, roadmap and market approach.

According to Forrester, Hexaware “has strong capabilities for ongoing support and Workday technology.” The report also states that Hexaware “is the best fit for application management work, including reports and integration” as it offers a fixed-fee and shared services model. In terms of client references, the report specified that Hexaware has received praise from clients for the “ability to go above and beyond the contractual agreement and to adapt to changes in the business.” Further to this, Hexaware received an On-Par rating in the criteria of Workday analytics, AI and automation and Workday technology.

Elaborating on Hexaware's focus on Workday services, Prasan Prabhakaran, Senior Vice President and Global Head of Enterprise Solutions, Hexaware, said, “As an India-based Workday services partner, we believe this recognition reflects our continued investment and focus on Cloud-based HR systems. When combined with Workday, Hexaware is able to deliver significant value and business results to clients and help them attain customer success as their competitive advantage.”
